

YEAR REVIEW 2021

"WHAT A CRAZY YEAR"

I will never forget this year. Why? The pandemic has shown more than once that connection and learning from each other are extremely important for our construction and real estate sector. There are so many opportunities to seize.

Care homes, making offices and homes more sustainable, building with wood, smart buildings, ventilation is suddenly a theme, healthy buildings, ESG, neighborhoods where people live, work, relax and play sports, digitization, etc. Those are themes in which innovation is central and this received more attention in the past year than in other years. New initiatives have also emerged from professionals who came together such as the Gideons to share knowledge.

And what about us? I am extremely proud of our team and the people we work with a lot (Tim Weldam for the videos and broadcasts in our studio and Frank de Jong for everything that has to do with sound). Every time we had to deal with a setback, we immediately stood up again with perseverance and creativity. As a result, we were often the first with all kinds of new initiatives (from online masterclasses to the first physical CEO dinner since the pandemic).

Next year we will be the very first to organize a real festival (knowledge, networking and cool drinks). Michel Baars, Petran van Heel and Leontien de Waal inspire us with their ideas. In September 2022 we will organize a three-day event, called REBF. It will be spectacular!

Calling all construction and real estate professionals:

As far as I'm concerned, successful innovation means innovating together. Learning together and working towards a better built future. Will you join us?
